UM ANNOUNCES EXTENSION COURSE ON MODERN INDIAN PROBLEMS local + cs +
IN ST. IGNATIUS BEGINNING NOV. 10

MISSOULA--

The University of Montana Center for Continuing Education and Summer Programs has announced an extension course entitled "Modern Indian Problems," to begin Monday, Nov. 10, in St. Ignatius. Class meetings will be in the St. Ignatius High School from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. on Monday evenings. Dr. Carling Malouf, chairman of the UM anthropology department, will be instructing the course.

The course is offered as Anthropology 452. The beginning of the course will focus on a historical perspective, from colonial times to the present. Supreme Court decisions, legislative and executive government branch policies and laws will be examined.

After the historical perspective has been set, participants will discuss present economic, political, educational, health and welfare situations of the Native American.

No prerequisites are required for participation in the class, which is offered for three graduate or undergraduate credits. The cost is $63/ or $31.50 for a listener's fee. Registration will be at the first class meeting.

For further information contact the Center for Continuing Education and Summer Programs, Main Hall 107, University of Montana, Missoula, Mont. 59801, or phone 243-2900.
